In JSON, GET parameters are usually passed in the URL. They are appended to the URL after a question mark (?), and separated from each other by an ampersand (&). The format of GET parameters in JSON is as follows:

```
{
  "name1": "value1",
  "name2": "value2"
}
```

The names and values are URL-encoded. For example, if you want to pass two parameters, “name” and “age”, with values “John” and 30 respectively, you would use the following URL:

`http://example.com?name=John&age=30` <http://example.com?name=John&age=30>
link?getParameter

I hope that helps! Let me know if you have any other questions.
